Greetings from the Organizations

Bozhoo, Tanisi, Tawnshi, Hello, Bonjour,

On behalf of the National Trust for Canada and the Canadian Association of Heritage Professionals (CAHP), welcome to Heritage Delivers: Impact, Authenticity, and Catalytic Change. What an honour to come together on Treaty 1 territory and the traditional territory of Anishinaabeg, Cree, Oji-Cree, Dakota, and Dene peoples, and the homeland of the Métis Nation. The historic city of Winnipeg has its own compelling stories to tell about the power of heritage to deliver fresh options, galvanize communities, and engage new audiences. It is our pleasure to offer delegates a rich and diverse program that reflects so many facets of the heritage movement: property development, community advocacy, museums and historic sites, conservation architecture, engineering and technology, heritage planning, and cultural tourism. The roster of speakers is equally diverse, studded with compelling and inspiring voices, including Indigenous colleagues, international thought leaders, private practitioners, elected officials, academics, and youth.

Over and over, the National Trust and CAHP have been humbled by the generosity of Indigenous Peoples who generously share their stories, expertise and traditional wisdom with us, and who welcome our conferences and delegates to their traditional territories each year. The National Trust is honoured to be an organizing partner in Maamiikwendan Gathering: Remembering Residential Schools and Cemeteries as Indigenous Sites of Conscience, together with the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation, and the National Indigenous Residential School Museum of Canada. Taking place at Long Plain First Nation, the site of the Portage la Prairie Residential School (now the Rufus Prince Building), this historic Maamiikwendan Gathering brings together Indigenous survivors and representatives from more than two dozen Indigenous Residential school and cemetery sites from every corner of Canada. It is an important opportunity for representatives from these communities, and other observers and stakeholders, to explore the future of these sites of conscience, which speak of tragedy and trauma, and also have the power to speak to all Canadians and inspire change.

At Maamiikwendan Gathering and the rest of Heritage Delivers, we invite all delegates to join us in listening with our ears and speaking with our hearts. It is our hope that throughout this conference, as we learn about places of great meaning and memory, we will advance a few steps together along the path to Reconciliation.

To the Attendees of the Maamiikwendan Gathering: Remembering Residential Schools & Cemeteries as Indigenous Sites of Conscience.

Mino giizhigad - It’s a Good Day:

As chairperson and on behalf of the Board of Directors of the National Indigenous Residential School Museum, it is my pleasure to welcome you all to our community of Long Plain First Nation, Treaty One Territory.

We are honored to host the Maamiikwendan – Remembering Residential Schools & Cemeteries as Indigenous Site of Consciousness event.

While you are here, we hope you enjoy your visit to our community.

My best wishes for an enjoyable and successful conference.

Welcome to the Maamiikwendan Gathering.

Thank you for joining us for the first of what will hopefully be many gatherings to recognize the vital initiatives that communities are leading in commemorating and memorializing Residential School sites and cemeteries. I am pleased we can help open the dialogue in advancing this important work.

The conversations we will have are informed by multiple Calls to Action – specifically Calls to Action 72-79. These Calls to Action reflect the many voices of Survivors that spoke to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. Central in these Calls is the need to remember, honour and commemorate all the children that never returned home from the schools.

The National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation (NCTR) is honoured to share and discuss the important work that will further realize these Calls to Action.

We are thankful for all of our partners, speakers and delegates that have made this conversation possible. Together we will ensure that Canada never forgets and the action continues.

Sincerely,

Ry Moran
Director of the NCTR
Conferences are a “collective creation” and Winnipeg 2019 – particularly with the integration of the historic and momentous Maamiikwendan Gathering – was one of the most complex we have ever mounted. National Trust Conference 2019: Heritage Delivers
We are storytellers, recounting the history of our land and our people—
the stories of Canada.
Wednesday, October 16

Maamiikwendan Gathering: Remembering Residential Schools & Cemeteries as Indigenous Sites of Conscience (Day 1)

Arrowhead Conference and Gaming Centre (5008 Crescent Road West), Long Plain First Nation (Portage la Prairie, Manitoba)
Shuttle departs from the Fairmont Lobby

Maamiikwendan will create the groundwork for an Indigenous network of groups working on commemorating and researching Indian Residential Schools and Cemeteries. It will strengthen community connections and accelerate dialogue, not only among community groups, but for the NCTR, National Trust, governments, church groups, and all others playing important roles in the TRC’s Calls to Action.

Set at the site of the former Portage la Prairie Indian Residential School, Maamiikwendan will gather Indigenous voices from across Canada to discuss Residential School sites, commemorations of cemeteries, sharing culturally respectful research methods and advancing Reconciliation. Discussions will highlight challenges, solutions, cultural considerations and best practices.

Research completed by the NCTR has identified 16 former Indian Residential Schools that are still standing (or partially standing). One key objective for Maamiikwendan will be to try to ensure that delegates from each of these schools are able to attend this event to share and discuss commemoration activities occurring at the community level including: repurposed buildings, endangered school sites, commemoration of cemeteries, and the links between Sanitoriums and Missing Children. This event addresses multiple Calls to Action issued by the Truth and Reconciliation Commission: CTA 72 – National Residential School Death Register; CTA 73 Cemetery Locations: CTA 74-76 – Memorial Ceremonies and Commemoration; CTA 79 – National Commemoration of Residential School Sites.

This project has been made possible in part by the Government of Canada, the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation, the National Trust for Canada, and the National Indigenous Residential School Museum of Canada.

Explore the winding streets, beautiful residential interiors, and the public policy opportunities and challenges of Winnipeg’s first Heritage Conservation District (HCD). Situated in a large bend in the Assiniboine River, this relatively isolated residential district was developed as a suburban haven for well-to-do families in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. This project was the initial component in a City of Winnipeg Cultural Renewal Strategy which included similar new construction projects including the Manitoba Centennial Centre, (the concert hall, museum, planetarium and Steinkopf Gardens) linked with an underground tunnel to the Civic Centre. The Public Safety Building and parkade were completed in 1966 followed by the Royal Manitoba Theatre Centre (National Historic Site and the 2019 winner of the RAIC - National Trust Prix du XXe siècle) in 1970. Join us to learn about these buildings and their designers. The tour route is fully accessible.

Depart Lobby (Fairmont Winnipeg)

Leaders: Greg Thomas (Board, Winnipeg Architecture Foundation) & Sheila Grover (Principal, Riverside Heritage) & Ryan Pollard (Project Manager, Fortune Block) & Others TBA

This field session takes in three major destinations which illustrate how heritage has played a key role in the revitalisation of Winnipeg’s urban landscape. The 1883 Fortune Block demonstrates how a committed developer has brought back historic structures that most Winnipeggers thought were doomed. Upper Fort Garry Provincial Heritage Park is a three acre cultural landscape that uses contemporary interpretive techniques such as a pixilated 400 foot steel wall to illuminate key stories associated with the establishment of Manitoba. The Forks is Manitoba's most successful tourism destination and heritage revitalisation. A meeting place for indigenous peoples for over 5,000 years, The Forks also served as an historic port, railway hub and now a recreational and commercial attraction. This tour will combine historic context with experts who have been personally involved with the planning and development of these heritage resources.

9:00 - 11:00 am
Field Session 4: Terra Cotta Architecture in Winnipeg (Walking Tour)
Depart Lobby (Fairmont Winnipeg)

Leader: Gail Perry (Winnipeg Architecture Foundation)

Did you know that many of Winnipeg’s “stone” buildings are made of clay? Winnipeg’s terra cotta collection is large and essentially complete. It is an unparalleled sampling in North America of the variety, versatility and beauty of this material. Join us for a tour through Winnipeg’s downtown to learn more about the history of terra cotta, of Winnipeg’s history and to view this wonderful collection of terra cotta architecture. The tour route is fully accessible.

Field Session 5: Moving Matter: Tyndall Stone in Winnipeg (Walking Tour)
Depart Lobby (Fairmont Winnipeg)

Leader: Abi Auld (Winnipeg Architecture Foundation)

At less than 160 years old, Winnipeg, Manitoba and its architecture is young. Yet, throughout this city and province, countless buildings are constructed of a 445 million year old material extracted from the depths below. This is Tyndall Stone. Both regionally commonplace and unique worldwide, the mottled, fossil-rich limestone formed 450 million years ago, in the basin of a shallow sea near the equator. For the last hundred years Tyndall Stone has been quarried near Garson, Manitoba and shipped across Canada and as far away as Europe, Australia, China and Japan.

1:00 - 4:00 pm
Field Session 6: Places of Faith as Community Hubs (Bus Tour)
Depart Lobby (Fairmont Winnipeg)

Leaders: Kendra Fry (Advisor, Regeneration Works, Faith & the Common Good) & Robert Pajot (Project Leader, Regeneration, National Trust)

There are many different paths that can lead to the regeneration of an historic place of faith. This field session will explore the successes and challenges faced by two historic places of faith, both in the vibrant Osborne Village neighbourhood, that are strengthening their different roles a community hubs. In recent years Crescent Fort Rouge United Church has opened its doors to a wide range of arts and culture programming that is attracting new uses for the building. The Augustine United Church is embarking on a major project to build on the church’s long history of community service and to bring financial sustainability by repurposing parts of the property for new tenants.

1:00 - 4:00 pm
Field Session 7: St. Boniface: The Centre of French and Métis Manitoba (Walking Tour)
Depart Lobby (Fairmont Winnipeg)

Leader: Dr. Philippe Mailhot (Retired Director of the St. Boniface Museum, Winnipeg, MB)

St. Boniface has long been the home of Franco-Manitobans in the province and ranks as the largest francophone community in Western Canada. The community was first settled in 1818 to meet the cultural and religious needs of the Red River Colony’s French and Métis inhabitants. A Francophone presence was thus established in the region before spreading throughout much of the future Province of Manitoba. St. Boniface became the Catholic and Francophone capital of the Red River settlement. Visit Louis Riel’s Grave, Grey Nuns’ Convent, St. Boniface Cathedral, and more.

SPECIAL ART INSTALLATION: Biidaaban: First Light (Interactive VR Experience)
Eton (Mezzanine Level, Fairmont Winnipeg)
An award-winning interactive VR project that illuminates how Indigenous languages can help us understand our place in a reconciled version of Canada’s largest urban environment.

Toronto’s Nathan Phillips Square is flooded. Its infrastructure has merged with the local fauna; mature trees grow through cracks in the sidewalks and vines cover south-facing walls. People commute via canoe and grow vegetables on skyscraper roofs. Urban life is thriving.

Rooted in the realm of Indigenous futurism, Biidaaban: First Light is an interactive VR time-jump into a highly realistic—and radically different—Toronto of tomorrow. As users explore this altered city now reclaimed by nature, they must think about their place in history and ultimately their role in the future.

Creators: Lisa Jackson (Anishinaabe) is one of Canada’s most celebrated contemporary artists working in film and VR. In Biidaaban: First Light, Lisa joins forces with 3D artist Mathew Borrett to create a future for Canada’s largest urban centre from an Indigenous female perspective.

The Rebirth of Winnipeg’s Exchange District
Wellington Ballroom (Lobby Level, Fairmont Winnipeg)

By the 1970s, Winnipeg’s Exchange District had seen it all. From the boom of the early 20th century as the heart of one of North America’s up and coming cities to the bust of the post war era, through the dramatic decline and urban decay of the 1960s and 70s.

The situation was hopeless until a new, unprecedented, tri-level governmental corporation, the Core Area Initiative (CAI) brought a unique and notable experiment in public policy, drawing considerable attention across North America and Europe. With $96 million in public dollars between 1981 and 1986, and another $100 million between 1986 and 1991, it drew $335 million in private investment. All three levels of government also decided to locate offices in the Exchange District. CentrePlan would continue the momentum that the CAI had started, bringing with it new tools and revitalization efforts, including CentreVenture Development Corporation, and today’s incarnation of the Forks North Portage Partnership.

This session brings together some of the key figures to tell the story of how the Exchange District pushed through its darkest days to emerge in its current form.

Session 2.5 – Advocacy Session
The Voices Behind Residential Heritage Conservation Districts: Breaking through the Cacophony to Recognize Risks and Overcome Perceptions
York (Mezzanine Level, Fairmont Winnipeg)

This session will explore lessons learned from the field in how to navigate community advocacy for HCDs. It will look at how practitioners and planners design meaningful education opportunities and relevant communications to help communities work through the complex and intertwined history of an area, and the divergent views for the long game of investment and involvement in the HCD planning process and ultimately conservation.

There are many voices involved: the voice of the built heritage lover, protector; the voice of nimbysim (which can come from a place of privilege/elitism); the voices for and against demolition, new development, infill; and, often less frequently, the voices for the protection and preservation of less tangible things such as streetscapes, views, and natural assets. Each of these ‘voices’ requires a unique strategy to recognize the associated risk and identify the solution to help overcome perceptions.

Session 4.6 – Field Session
Winnipeg’s Chinatown: Canada’s Gateway to the West
Depart Lobby (Fairmont Winnipeg)

Many Winnipeggers only think of Chinatown as a slightly exotic urban pocket where they occasionally go for dim sum. But the few square blocks around King Street and Alexander Avenue, just north of the Exchange District, are steeped in more than 135 years of significant history. Chinatowns were enclaves where Chinese political groups organized and dramatic troupes performed. They were havens where a Chinese newcomer who had just got off the train could get help from fellow countrymen. They attracted Christian missionaries who sought to convert “heathen” Chinese. They were seen as “exotic” and “sinful,” and thought to be associated with gambling and opium dens.

Wait! Before you go for dinner, come hear about Climate Change in Heritage Places… During this session, participants will explore the impacts of climate change and extreme weather events affecting Canadian heritage places and will gain insight on how people can work together to find adaptation options specific to their sites.

Over the last three years, Parks Canada has been facilitating workshops to investigate how climate change is affecting Canada’s heritage places (risks and impacts), and what can and should be done about it (adaptation options). This presentation will summarize the trends that we are seeing at our heritage sites across the country, using climate data from Parks Canada scientists and on-the-ground experiences from staff and operators. It will also detail the methodology of the Adaptation Workshop Framework, developed by Parks Canada and the Canada Parks Council, which has been used to facilitate the eight sessions completed so far. Lastly, we will discuss the broad findings of the workshops, and explain how other groups can host their own for their cultural sites.

Session 5.1 - Plenary
Building Disruption: The Role of Materials Reuse in Heritage, Climate Change, and the Circular Economy
West-Midway Ballroom (Mezzanine Level, Fairmont Winnipeg)
We know that the greenest building is the one that already exists, capitalizing on the resources involved in its creation and the sunk carbon it embodies. We also know, for example, that 136 million tons of construction and demolition waste go into US landfills each year, and that a whopping 60% of US resource consumption is related to construction practices. Europe is now emerging as a global leader in linking ideas of the circular economy with adaptive reuse, deconstruction and materials reuse. But where does heritage conservation fit into this new paradigm? Is the rise of materials harvesting yet another threat to heritage buildings? Or is it a compelling opportunity to underscore their material value, and give conservationists another tool to argue for building retention and reuse?
The release of Mark Gorgolewski’s book Resource Salvation: The Architecture of Reuse (2017) and the Heritage in Reverse: Material Values, Waste, and Deconstruction symposium organized by Susan Ross in 2018 helped launch this conversation in Canada. Join us for a thought-provoking session as we bring these two Canadian thinkers into dialogue with Niklas Nolsøe from Lendager Group (Denmark), a pathbreaking firm working to upcycle building waste and disrupt traditional construction practice. This plenary launches a mini conference track – Heritage, Waste, and Reuse – which also includes session 6.1 and Field Session 7.5.

- Mark Gorgolewski (Professor and Chair, Architectural Science, Ryerson University, Toronto, ON)
- Susan Ross (Associate Professor, School of Indigenous and Canadian Studies, Carleton University, Ottawa, ON)

Session 6.5 – FIELD SESSION
Raising Democratic Discourse: Accessibility Upgrades to the Manitoba Legislative Chamber (Bus Tour)
Depart Lobby (Fairmont Winnipeg)

Leader: Evan Hunter (Architect, Republic Architecture, Winnipeg)

The Manitoba Legislative Building, an iconic Winnipeg landmark, was constructed from 1913 – 1920 and is one of the province’s most impressive heritage structures. The legislative chamber is unique among provincial legislatures in that the members’ seats are arranged in a horseshoe-shape, with the Speaker situated separately at the opening. This arrangement admirably encourages open dialogue and communication, however the original design did not accommodate universal access, making it challenging, if not impossible, for a differently abled person to serve in such key roles as Premier, Speaker, Senior Minister, or Leader of the Opposition. In 2018, an important, large scale renovation was completed that opened desks to persons with physical limitations, including accommodations for wheelchairs and other mobility aids.

This field session and explores how the heritage rehabilitation meticulously preserved the original design intent and integrity, while utterly transforming it. the process, key features, and many challenges and successes of the renovation project. Space limited due to security considerations.

Session 7.4 - Indigenous Cultural Heritage Track
Changing the Paradigm for Partnering to Better Protect and Present Indigenous Heritage and Stories at Places Managed by Parks Canada
H.E.C. Room (Mezzanine Level, Fairmont Winnipeg)

Canada’s heritage places have always been defined by the stories they tell. However, these places are increasingly being defined by the stories that are absent – particularly the stories of Indigenous Peoples who made use of these places since time immemorial and for whom many of them remain sacred.

Parks Canada is working to deliver on the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada’s Call to Action 79, which calls on the Government of Canada to integrate Indigenous history, heritage values, and memory practices into Canada’s national heritage and history, and to commemorate the contributions of Indigenous peoples to Canada’s history.

Join Parks Canada and Indigenous community leaders to discuss initiatives underway across the country to include multiple perspectives, share storytelling authority and engage Canadians with broader, more inclusive stories.

This is your final opportunity to meet the authors of these poster presentations and learn more about their fascinating projects.
With this year’s anniversary commemorations of the 1919 Winnipeg General Strike, the heritage places associated with that watershed event in Canada’s social history have come under renewed scrutiny. This final plenary brings together two remarkable speakers who will explore the heritage of working-class experience – tangible and intangible – on opposite sides of the globe. University of Hong Kong architect and heritage conservation professor Yu Ka-Sing will tell us about the UNESCO prize-winning Blue House project in Hong Kong that saved working class shophouse buildings, and sustained their working communities, in the world’s most high-pressure property market. Film Producer and Writer Danny Schur, on the other hand, will bring us deeply into the narratives of the 1919 Winnipeg General Strike, through his insights on the making of his film “Stand!” scheduled for release this fall. His research for the film led him on a journey that challenged his preconceived notions of the General Strike, and brought him closer to the lives of those that experienced it first-hand.
